

The UK's leading bathroom wall panels

NOVEMBER 2023

Multipanel to exhibit at HIX for the first time

Multipanel, the UK's leading manufacturer of bathroom wall panels, is to exhibit at HIX (16-17th November) at the London British Design Centre, for the first time.

As Europe's only hotel design event, the decision to exhibit marks a statement of intent to the industry, as Multipanel looks to grow its market share within the hotel design sector. This also comes at a time when the company has invested heavily in its specification team, having made three internal promotions and the hire of Jamie Sandilands as Specification Sales Director, to better serve its customers.

The stand will feature Multipanel's new decors including the Misty Blue Metro Tile effect and one of their best-selling large tile effect decors, Valmasino Marble. Keen to communicate the ease in which Multipanel can be installed, the team will be conducting mini demos of live installations across the two days.

Jamie Sandilands, Specification Sales Director at Multipanel, says: "We have worked in the specification market for several years, but with a new managing director in place, we've repositioned and enhanced our specification service to better serve our customers.

"With a new team in place along with several new collections, we're in a position where we can provide a considered alternative to other wall coverings within the hotel specification market.

“We’re very much looking forward to exhibiting for the first time and showcasing the extensive benefits our wall panels offer.”

Anyone wishing to visit Multipanel will find them at stand U6.
